

THANKSGIVING DINNERS.

The Modern and the Old Fashioned Types.

PAPERS READ AT WOMAN'S CLUB

Two Very Interesting Papers Were Read at the Meeting This Week and The News Feels Fortunate in Being Able to Reproduce Them.

Just at this season of the year perhaps no subject is quite so close to the thought of womankind in general as the Thanksgiving dinner.

Mrs. Walker G. Baker spoke on "The Modern Thanksgiving Dinner," as follows:

Hospitality exists among the rich and the poor. Surely it is one of the most creditable traits of human nature, this instinct for dividing with our fellows, this desire in man to share his heart and his goods with his friends.

Let the guests remember that not all the responsibility of the success of the dinner rests upon the host, hostess and cook, for as "the ornaments of a home are the guests who frequent it," so the noblest condition of a table is the talk that circles about it.

The day is not so far distant when the average mother will blush to acknowledge that her children are sick, unless the sickness is caused by an epidemic, and even then she will look up the board of health to prevent other children suffering from the same cause.

Let us be thankful that we live in a day when the average family Thanksgiving dinner consists of roast turkey and pumpkin pie with their few simple accompaniments.

In laying the table, try to have the color of the center-piece more pronounced than on other days. Get some of the long, beautiful sprays of bittersweet which grow in abundance along the river north of the sugar factory; fill a large bowl with them for the center of your table.

At first it was thought that amputation would be necessary, so badly was his hand and wrist crushed, but on further examination his physician determined to attempt to save the hand, and it is believed this morning that this can be done.

Two small pumpkins, carved to resemble baskets, and filled with fruits, placed at each end of the table are significant, as well as appropriate, for the occasion.

There are some pretty little past-board trifles to be seen now which are just the thing for this dinner. They come in the shape of doves, in delicate grays and browns, with the body an open box for salted nuts and the wide spread tail ready for the name of a guest; if you prefer to use plain cards you may fill the boxes with a sherbet or with ice cream and still find them delightfully suggestive of the day when game is one of the things one recalls as figuring conspicuously in the historic dinners of the Pilgrim fathers.

Then, too, if you would blend the old with the new have many lighted candles around the dining room and on the table. These are beautiful with shades of artificial chrysanthemums.

Now for the dinner itself. The menu should be a skillful combination of what may be termed the national dishes with others we especially like, and above all do not neglect the brown November nut.

Menu.

- Oyster cocktail
Clear soup
Young Turkey, Cranberry Jelly
Chestnut boulettes Mashed potatoes
Olives Salted nuts
Lemon sherbet with creme-de-menthe cherries
Cheese straws
Halves of prairie chicken Lettuce
Pumpkin pie
Nuts and raisins Black coffee

If prairie chicken is not procurable you may substitute sweet breads with Maderia. If you are an adept with the chafing dish you may prepare your sweet breads at the table. The sweet breads and mushrooms are only creamed in the chafing dish, being otherwise prepared beforehand.

A most appropriate beverage to serve at a Thanksgiving dinner is spiced cider. To make it, boil sweet cider fifteen minutes with sugar to taste, and whole cloves and stick cinnamon; serve it very hot in tall glasses with the roast and game courses. Anything which suggests the homely, Puritan, unworldly character of the day is always in keeping, and the more unusual it is, the better.

Early Thanksgiving. Following is the paper presented by

Mrs. A. J. Durland to the Woman's club:

- The following menu, taken from an old magazine, was the one in vogue one hundred years ago on Thanksgiving day by our Puritan forefathers:
Clam chowder
Roast codfish and boiled potatoes
Baked Pork and Beans
Roast turkey with onion sauce and cranberry Jelly
Baked ham
Mashed potatoes Baked squash
Buttered parsnips
Roast sucking pig and apple sauce
Chicken pie
Cold slaw Brown bread
Cream cheese

- Mince pie Apple pie
Pumpkin pie
Baked Indian pudding
Coffee

And this appalling amount of food was all placed upon the table at once to be devoured by the hungry host and his guests.

It would seem that we and the generation to come should adhere strictly to the bread and milk diet in order to strike a balance.

Little wonder that we, their descendants, are called the greatest nation of dyspeptics in the world.

There has never been a time in the history of our country when the subject of dietetics has received so much careful attention as now, because the intelligent men and women of today realize its importance. Rheumatism, Bright's disease, diabetes and a dozen other diseases trace their origin directly or indirectly to improper diet.

The day is not so far distant when the average mother will blush to acknowledge that her children are sick, unless the sickness is caused by an epidemic, and even then she will look up the board of health to prevent other children suffering from the same cause.

Let us be thankful that we live in a day when the average family Thanksgiving dinner consists of roast turkey and pumpkin pie with their few simple accompaniments.

RIGHT HAND BADLY CRUSHED

P. F. Sprecher Meets With an Accident in a Printing Press that Nearly Costs a Hand.

[From Saturday's Daily.] P. F. Sprecher, publisher of the Norfolk Press, had his right hand badly crushed last night in his cylinder press. He was printing his paper and as the work was a little behind, he was driving the press to its full speed. Suddenly a piece of paper dropped upon one of the ink rollers and he reached in to pick it off without stopping the press. While doing this the roller reversed and caught his fingers, drawing the hand into the machinery half way to the elbow.

At first it was thought that amputation would be necessary, so badly was his hand and wrist crushed, but on further examination his physician determined to attempt to save the hand, and it is believed this morning that this can be done.

"OLD ARKANSAW."

Fred Redmond's Company Played to Good House Last Night.

"Old Arkansaw" held the boards at the Auditorium last night and was presented to a large and well pleased audience, which exhibited more appreciation of the efforts of the company than has been customary for a Norfolk audience, and it is to be hoped that the people have at last come to the conclusion that merited applause is of value in bringing out the best that is in the actors.

"Old Arkansaw" is of a time-honored type of comedy-drama that takes well with the average run of theatre-goers, and if the enthusiasm of the audience last night counted for anything it certainly made good in Norfolk. Comedy, tragedy, villainy and heroism are carefully blended in a manner to delight a large class of people who frequent the play houses.

There were some specialties worked in, the dancing of Harry Edman as "Jeremiah Snodgrass" being the best received.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The English literature class is reading "Hamlet."

The junior class of American literature is reading "The Vision of Sir Launfel."

The seniors have finally selected a class pin. It is of small diamond shape with raised letters.

Oliver Utter was out one day last week with a sore foot, which had been injured in the gymnasium.

Dr. Salter, a member of the board of education, in company with a carpenter, looked over the gymnasium Friday morning, and it is anticipated that there will be something doing there shortly.

The microscope that was ordered some time ago has arrived and has been in almost constant use since its receipt by the pupils who are concerned in the cells and other construction of plants and flowers.

The seniors are talking of raising a fund and going to the state university at Lincoln to get a preliminary idea of the course of study, and methods of teaching pursued there. This practice has been quite common with other schools and it is believed that much good to pupils and school results.

LEAVE FOR OLD MEXICO

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Miller Will Take a Long Trip.

THEY OWN PROPERTY THERE.

Came From Mexico Eight Years Ago. Will Eat Strawberries After the First of January—Roasting Ears, String Beans and Peas Now on.

[From Monday's Daily.]

Myron A. Miller, who has held the position of watchmaker and jeweler in the Hayes jewelry and music house for the past three and one-half years, and his wife, Dr. Sadie Hart Miller, who has been practicing osteopathy in Norfolk for the same length of time, leave Tuesday for Kirkville, Mo., where they will visit for a week and will then leave for their new home at Los Mochis, Mexico. A party of six relatives and friends will join them at Kirkville and make the trip with them, expecting to locate in Mexico. They will travel by rail to Guaymas, Mexico, on the Gulf of California, where they will take a steamer and proceed down the coast about 250 miles, landing at Topolobampo, from which place it is a twelve miles trip to Los Mochis, where Mr. Miller owns property.

Mr. Miller has been making affidavit that he goes to Mexico to reside, and that the goods he will carry will be for his own use and the use of his family. In this way he will not be compelled to pay the custom duties charged the ordinary traveler. The affidavit must have the signature of the secretary of state, and will be sent to the Mexican consul at Chicago and will be shown to the custom house officials on the line between the United States and Mexico.

Mr. Miller lived in Old Mexico for some time eight years ago, and ever since he left he has been anxious to return and take up his residence in a country that he designates as ideal, as to climate, opportunity for investment, etc.

They raise two crops of corn a year, the yield being from seventy to 100 bushels an acre. His brother-in-law writes him that the cane crop this year is going about thirty-six tons to the acre which, at $4 a ton will bring $120 an acre. All the land in that part of the country must be irrigated to raise crops, but the soil is deep and fertile and produces abundantly when there is sufficient moisture. It is expected that a railroad line will soon be built northeast, into the United States, materially reducing the distance to the American markets.

They are now eating roasting ears, string beans, peas, summer squash, and other vegetables that are on the market here in July and August. Strawberries will be on the market there about the first of January and will be served as a regular thing for six months of the year following. Mr. Miller has twenty acres that have been planted to corn this year, and farmed by the natives who are not as successful in agricultural pursuits as are the Americans who have located there.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller leave many friends in Norfolk who wish them a safe trip to their distant home.

FRIDAY FACTS.

J. M. Smith is in the city from the country seat.

John Goff was a city visitor from Pierce Friday.

Miss Julia Wineberger of Madison is visiting with Norfolk friends.

Mrs. Kathleen Richardson is over from Emerick to see "Old Arkansaw."

Sol G. Mayer returned Thursday evening from a business trip to Lincoln.

Mrs. W. N. Huse left this morning for Hawarden, Iowa, to visit relatives for a few days.

J. M. Akey, a prominent ranchman from Plainview, was in the city Friday morning on his way home from a trip to the east.

Mrs. Armstrong of Wisner and Mrs. Symington of Los Angeles Cal. are guests of Mrs. F. W. Koerber in South Norfolk.

Mrs. R. W. Bruce goes to Sloux City in the morning in response to a telegram announcing the serious illness of her granddaughter, Marion Smith.

L. L. Rembe, who has been confined to the house since September 16 with a severe attack of typhoid fever, is able to sit up and hopes to be out in a short time.

Fred Sidler and family left Thursday for Chicago, where they expect to make their home in the future. Mr. Sidler has a position in the Piano manufacturing plant.

J. F. Hepperly, foreman of a gang of the Canton Bridge company, is in the city meeting his friends. He came down from Randolph and will go from here to Niobrara with his men to do some work there.

The company presenting "Old Arkansaw" arrived in the city Friday morning with a large amount of special scenery. The company has been playing to good houses and giving satisfaction and they come with the expectation of pleasing a large audience of Norfolk people.

Street Commissioner Miller says that if the merchants will refrain from throwing straw and other rubbish into the ditch along main street it will be to their advantage next spring. With the ditches full of refuse and frozen solid it will be impossible to carry off the water at the time they are most needed for drainage purposes next spring.

A Norfolk man has figured out to his satisfaction why his little son wears out so many more shoes than he does. In walking he finds that the boy takes twice as many steps in going the same distance, and on top of this are the many extra steps that the man never thinks of taking so that he is now surprised that the boy's shoes wear as long as they do.

Today gives another combination of the unlucky in being Friday, and the 13th, but up to noon no unusually serious calamities have been reported. One Norfolk man has been heard to claim that thirteen is his lucky number and that he stands especially good chances of being lucky when the 13th falls on Friday, so he was around looking for a million dollar gold piece today. It would perhaps be as well if all should find that thirteen is lucky for them.

Miss Mary Sharp of Humbolt, Iowa, a niece of Mrs. E. N. Huntington, has been visiting in the city for the past few days. Miss Sharp is on her way to San Francisco, where she is to be married to Mr. Frank Shelly, an army paymaster. Immediately after the wedding they will sail for the Philippine Islands, his assignment taking him to Zamboanga, in the extreme southern part and only about 400 miles north of the equator. Enroute they have been invited to be the guests of a nephew of the mikado of Japan during their stay in that country.

The forecast of The News and the weather man that winter was due was carried out to the letter as was apparent to everyone when they arose Friday morning to find the ground covered with its first coating of snow. It was not a heavy fall, about half an inch, but was sufficient to set the hearts of the boys fluttering as is usual with the first snow that brings suggestions of coasting, sleigh rides and Santa Claus. The snow as it fell was not far from being water, it was so wet and heavy, and although the sun failed to get a peep at it the fall had almost entirely disappeared before noon, leaving mud and slush behind. It was a significant reminder, however, that winter is likely to set down to business at any time. The temperature went down to twenty-one degrees, while the average was at the freezing point. The forecast is for more rain or snow.

Was a Cold Wave.

A cold wave bringing with it the severest weather thus far of the season struck the northwest last evening and today the entire area of Nebraska, South Dakota and Iowa is wrapped in bitter frigidty. The sudden change in the temperature of the air brought a drop in the mercury of from twenty to thirty degrees generally over this section of the country. This afternoon the wave struck east of the Mississippi valley and reports indicate that that territory is suffering as much as this.

The cold wave was predicted by the weather bureau yesterday morning. The following dispatch was received at The News office at 10 o'clock: "Cold wave. Most severe cold of season in extreme northwest. Will cause fall in temperature twenty to thirty degrees in northwest tonight and east of Mississippi valley Monday."

As an indication of the suddenness and the severity of this cold wave, the fact that the weather bureau has sent out but one other Sunday message during the past three years is significant.

The barometer which stood 30 inches high on Saturday dropped to 29.40 yesterday morning, showing a prospective change. It has gone up again since the cold air came and stood at 7 this morning even with the 29.68 mark.

Fairfax, S. D., Nov. 16.—Special to The News: A cold wave struck Fairfax Sunday morning and the weather has continued to get colder.

Creighton, Neb., Nov. 16.—Special to The News: Snow fell here Monday morning. A very severe cold wave struck Sunday evening and the thermometer dropped about twenty degrees.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

One Boy Killed and Another Seriously Injured Near Plattsmouth.

Plattsmouth, Neb., Nov. 17.—Wm. Burke of Alford, Iowa, was instantly killed and Albert Kimmel of Parsons, Kan., injured near Pacific Junction yesterday afternoon. They were struck by Burlington passenger train No. 3 while lying asleep on the track.

Burke was badly mangled and was dead when the train men got to him after the engine was stopped. Kimmel was apparently aroused by the noise of the approaching train and was in the act of arising when he was hit. He was thrown off the track and landed in the ditch, but was found to be badly bruised, but not seriously hurt, and was able to walk to the depot.

It has been learned that the young men were not common tramps, but farmer boys. Burke was only 17 years of age. Kimmel is 18 and is a son of a wealthy farmer living at Parsons, Kan. Both boys were well dressed and Kimmel carried a fine gold watch.

METHODIST MEN'S SUPPER

Served Roast Pig Last Night to Many Hungry People.

A GOOD MENU WAS SERVED.

Some Question About the Financial End of the Venture, But Everyone Enjoyed the Supper and that was the Main Object of the Entertainers.

[From Saturday's Daily.] The roast pig supper served by the men of the Methodist church was a success in attendance and enjoyment, but, though the receipts were $52, the expenses have not been figured out, and it is feared that the net monetary returns will not be photogenic.

There was such a demand for the tempting viands that the men who managed the affair were compelled to send out more than once to replenish their larder, showing that they were good as cooks, but perhaps not as successful at the management of the supplies for such an entertainment as are the ladies.

The tables were laid in a hollow square in the lecture room, while the inside was reserved for the convenience of the waiters. The supper was so good that the ladies insisted that there was a woman or women at the bottom of the case, and the clean linen and table decorations almost made some of the men suspicious that they guessed truly, but it was as persistently maintained by the male folks that none but the men had anything whatever to do with it. The roast pig was done to a turn, delicately flavored and rich; the coffee was just right, so were the bread and cake and other things.

After the service of the supper a musical and literary program was given that held the people until quite a late hour.

SATURDAY SIFTINGS.

Mrs. C. A. Smith of Tilden was a Norfolk visitor Friday.

Mrs. E. O. Mount returned from Omaha Friday evening.

Mrs. Richardson of Battle Creek visited in the city Friday.

Mrs. Herman Puls of Hoskins visited Norfolk friends Friday.

Mrs. Horton and Mrs. Young of Stanton were city visitors Friday.

Miss Otella Pilger has gone to Wayne to visit her cousins over Sunday.

The Mandolin club went to Meadow Grove Friday night to play for a dance.

M. J. Romig has gone to Neligh to visit relatives and friends until Sunday noon.

It must be winter. Marshal Kane and lesser lights have donned their winter caps.

John F. Sides, sheriff of Dakota county, was in the city Friday evening interviewing politicians.

Mr. and Mrs. Idle have returned from Creighton, where they have been visiting with Mrs. Idle's parents.

Miss Hattie Linerode and her cousin, Miss Bowman, went to Pilger Saturday noon, to return in the evening.

Judge Barnes left Saturday for Lincoln, going by way of Tekamah, where he will visit his son John over Sunday.

Mrs. Warren Hurlbert returned Saturday noon from Neligh, where she had been visiting relatives and friends.

Misses Bertina Pilger and Martha Wilde have gone to Tilden to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Lenser over Sunday.

Christmas goods are already beginning to make their appearance in the stores. Norfolk merchants are preparing for a big trade on this line of goods this year.

Mrs. Smith, mother of Mrs. C. H. Brake, left Saturday morning for an extended visit at Woodbine, Iowa. She was accompanied by Mrs. Brake, who will remain until the middle of next week.

A. J. Koenigstein is adding some handsome new plate glass show cases to his pharmacy equipment, that will substitute for the old fashioned counters, and will add materially to the appearance of the store.

The Rebekah Odd Fellows will give a social entertainment next Wednesday evening, November 18, to all Odd Fellows and their families and all visiting members of the order. All Odd Fellows will take notice.

A number of the young friends of Miss Ethel White gave her a surprise party Friday evening at her home on South Third street, in honor of her birthday. The fun was as entertaining as is usual on such occasions and the refreshments were no unimportant consideration to the assembled guests.

Lewis Dudley has a horse that has not the slightest idea of reciprocity or gratitude. Friday afternoon the horse fell down in front of the Dudley home on South Third street, and after Mr. Dudley had carefully helped the animal to its feet the beast bolted and ran away. After a spirited sprint the horse was stopped in front of the Krahn tailor shop by Arthur Krahn. No damage was done.

Found Body in Creek. The dead body of Carl Fisher, a farmer residing four miles south of

THE OLD RELIABLE

Absolutely Pure THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

Rushville, was found Saturday in Rush creek. The coroner's jury found that Fisher came to his death by an accident while in a state of intoxication. It seems that he had remained in town until late at night, when he started for home. His team passed along the steep bank of the creek. The wagon was overturned and Fisher was caught in such a manner that he was unable to extricate himself. A portion of the body was in the creek. Both horses were dead when found.

On the same day Patrick Burk, also of Sheridan county, met his death while in a state of intoxication. He was on his way home from Hay Springs. He fell with his neck across the endgate of the wagon, thereby completely strangling himself.—Chadron Journal.
